WHAT TO DO WITH THE ASHES?

Eight cremations have taken place at Washington, Pa., where a funeral furnace is established. The last body incinerated was that of the wife of a prominent lawyer of Warren. Religious services were held as usual; then the body was taken from the casket, wrapped in a sheet saturated with alum water, and placed in the crematory furnace. In two hours the remains were reduced to ashes.

What was done with the ashes is not stated. Perhaps the husband had them done up in a brown paper parcel and went home with them under his arm. The casket is which the remains were taken to the cemetery must have been as good as new, and was possibly preserved for the funeral of a second wife. This saving of coffins must commend itself to the heads of families as one of the best features of cremation. One coffin, made large, would answer a whole family for several generations. It might get a little out of style, it is true, but what is style in the presence of death.

The question of the fitting disposal of the ashes of the deceased is one that yet remains unsettled. A wife would, in case of the death and cremation of her husband, feel it her sacred duty to fitly care for his ashes, being, of course, his residuary legatee. One can fancy the weeping widow bearing away to her grief-stricken home the ashy remains of a true and noble husband, neatly done up in a black paper bag, or perhaps in a funeral ash pan designed for the purpose. It will not do to bury those ashes. She might just as well have had her John Henry planted in the ground flat once as to bury the cinders to which he was reduced at considerable expense. If the widow has children, she will want to put their father's ashes where they cannot spill them. It would never do to run the risk of allowing little Jimmy to have a chance to incorporate the cinders of his deceased parent into a mud pie. It was the ancient practice to deposit the ashes in a funeral urn, which was preserved in a tomb or other sacred place. But this is un-American. Modern American widows would never consent to it. They will have the ashes of their first husband in the house, where they can at any time take off the cover and shed bitter tears into them, until they marry again. But just what kind of a receptacle to place them in—that's what's the question.

American inventive genius has been applied to the solution of this important problem. A recent patent consists in providing a parlor bust of the deceased, cut in marble, and in making a hole in the back of the bust, wherein the ashes are to be deposited after cremation of the body. A further improvement, suggested by a lady correspondent of the Scientific American, is "to prepare a wet mixture of cements for artificial stone or marble, and sprinkle the ashes of the deceased into the mixture, which is then to be cast or pressed into the form of busts, statuettes, or other objects. In this way various members of the family might possess enduring portions of the ashes of the departed one."

To both these two plans there are objections. The first might do well enough in the case of the widow, while she remained single. But suppose she married again, and fell into the habit of unduly praising her first husband to her second, as women who have had experience as widows are apt to do. Some day, when his own failings were being contrasted with the virtues of the lamented deceased, would not husband No. 2 be apt to "damn John Henry," smash the funeral bust, and fling the sacred ashes to the winds. Such a dreadful possibility will be guarded against by all thoughtful widows.

The suggestion to make busts and statuettes out of the ashes of the deceased is open to the same objection as others. Few of the bereaved could afford to have busts of any description made. Then what dreadfully inartistic things most of them would be. Besides they would get broken. Fancy a bust made in the image of a true and loving husband, out of his very ashes, with the nose broken off or a crack in the jaw. These plans will never do. The problem is yet unsolved.

SPAIN AND SPANISH POETRY.

In last Friday's Sun there is a beautifully written criticism of "Modern Spanish Poets." The style of the article is as charming as Taine's, and possibly he may have written it. Spanish poetry is described as a "flowing stream, a caressing woman, a lattice partly open, an orange tree with fragrant white flowers. It is a dreaming Arab, a fighting Norseman, a coal-eyed Moor." The critic gives the highest place in Spanish poetry to Zorrilla. "You might as well try to reproduce on canvas the perfume of the rose or the luminous mist or vapor of light that envelopes everything in that land of gold as to translate Zorrilla's verses." What a charming picture is this the writer draws of Spain:

"The sun is the father of poetry, and nature its mother. In the land of Spain, warmed with sunlight and shaded with orange trees, where women glow like burning lava, where flowers perfume the air, where even ruins smile and the dawn sparkles, where the poppy laden fields look like lakes of blood, where cozy little cottages nesting in rose dotted foliage seem to bury their inmates in happiness, where the English go every year to thaw their souls frozen in the humid atmosphere of their nativeisle, where the iron Goth conquered, the fiery Moor loved, and the steel-knit Roman built, where the soil like a captive beauty vanquishes its conquerors, where the soul of an African fires a Caucasian body, where painters have only to shake their brushes in the air to fill them with gray colors—in this land poetry gushes from the heart as pure as a mountain stream. It is as much a product of nature as a jasmine or a honeysuckle."

Campoamor is to-day the most popular of all Spanish poets, living or dead. He holds nearly as high a place in Spanish literature as Cervantes, whose Don Quixote is immortal. His verses show a charming freedom. Grilo is a poet of love and sorrow. The Sun writer says "his verses sound like the leaves of a wet tree shaken by the wind. He speaks in Spain the great language of nature."

Spain seems to be shaking off the sloth which has weighted her limbs for centuries. The leaven of radical ideas is working in the Spanish mind. A majority of the Spanish people are Republican in sentiment. A Republican form of government will be apt to follow the death of Castelar. In him the Spaniards have one of the greatest of living orators, a writer and a statesman. The country that can produce such a man can not be going to decay. Her language is regarded by Emil Girardin as, with English, the language of the future. Her twenty-four millions of people live in a rich and fruitful land. They have colonized the world. Spain may yet regain her prestige and resume her place in the front rank of nations.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The trial of E. F. Schroeder, charged with the murder of Dr. Lefevre, is progressing at Oakland. The taking of evidence commenced yesterday. Schroeder is a son-in-law of the Rev. Dr. Stebbins of San Francisco. He shot Dr. Lefevre for criminal intimacy with his wife. The defense waived the right to make any statement to the jury. The evidence introduced yesterday was all in relation to the shooting, concerning which there is no question. The defense will probably try to clear Schroeder by setting up a plea of temporary insanity and by appealing to the sympathies of the jury.

When secular newspapers get to warring with each other, esteemed contemporaries, well pleased, look on and grin. But what a painful sight it is to see religious journals fight. And yet they do sometimes, belaboring with the same club the sins of the world and the shoulders of Christian contemporaries. Thus the editor of the Freeman's Journal twice in the same article calls a brother Catholic editor a puppy—a puppy—he has it printed in Italics. This is sad indeed.

The Springfield Republican says: "A Burlington girl recently had one of her feet modelled in marble, and gave it as a paper weight to her betrothed for a birthday present." Her foot was doubtless pretty, but it seems to us that she might have made a little more of the idea, and given greater satisfaction.

A very crafty man was Marcus Hawby, who was hanged in Virginia lately for murder. Nannie Hawkins was the mother of his two children, but he did not marry her until the day of his execution. Then he was baptized and the halter was put about his neck.

The New England Farmer is making an active crusade against pies. It wants to see children fed on oatmeal and fruit. But what is the use of commencing a war of that kind in Thanksgiving time, with Christmas close at hand!

The trial of Dudley Haskell, Jr., at San Francisco, charged with manslaughter in having shot and killed George Schwartz in Sept., 1919, resulted in the acquittal of the accused. He was defended by W. H. L. Barnes.

The local item in to-day's Gazette respecting the removal of Lonkey & Smith's planing mill from Verdi to Reno is good news for Reno. Important industries are centering here. Reno is the banner town of Nevada.

It blew a little in San Francisco Wednesday night. A large undaunted building went down before the gale, and the roof was snatched off a house. Fences were blown over and windows were driven in.

Moody & Sankey are wasting time in talking "mansions in the sky" to San Franciscans. They would sooner have a house on Nob Hill and take the chances as to when hereafter.

Illinois is to be congratulated. The State has paid off $18,000,000 in the last few years and is out of debt.

The Raquet Waltz.

The latest thing in dances is called the "raquet," and is neither a waltz nor a polka, though the best parts of both are preserved. The music starts up with a crash, as though a new volcano had broken out, and the girl will cling tightly as though frightened, if she understands the dance, and the young man will rescue her by a gentle pressure, if he understands the dance or knows anything at all. At the second crash they dodge as though someone had thrown a blacksmith shot at them, and then start in. They begin by imitating the struggle for life, representing a person who is drowning, but at each crash of the cymbals and bass-drum they dodge and scoot to one side, then dart back again, jam each other sideways, and then as the crashes of music become more terrific and deafening they try to drive each other through the floor by main strength, get desperate and claw and tear and pull, and all at once they grow raving with hydrophobia and delirium tremens and gnash their teeth and rave and suffer the most terrible agony—and it is all over. It is a short dance, as the design is amusement and not murder. But short as it is it is said to be very sweet.—Exchange.

A rapid penman can write 80 words a minute. To do this he must draw his pen through the space of a rod, 16 1/2 feet. In forty minutes his pen travels a furlong. We make, on an average, 16 curves or turns of the pen in writing each word. Writing 30 words in a minute, we must make 480 to each minute; in an hour, 28,800; in a day of only five hours, 144,000; in a year of 300 days, 43,200,000. The man who made 1,000,000 strokes with his pen was not at all remarkable. Many men, newspaper men, for instance, make 4,000,000. Here we have, in the aggregate, a mark of 800 miles long to be traced on paper by such a writer in a year.

A Lady's Foot in Evidence. Mrs. Brady has just got a verdict for $1,000—she claimed $15,000—from the city of Cleveland. She swore that she stepped into a hole on Twelfth street and severely hurt herself. The defense proved the hole to be only 3 inches by 12. The jury doubted. Her counsel measured her foot in court. It was 2 1/4 inches wide and not over 8 long in the shoe. Hence the verdict. No Carson girl could have recovered damages in such a case.

An Archangel in the Family. The Hamburg Correspondent, in order to do away with the idea that the czar of all the Russias could have stopped to marry beneath him, informs us that "the family of the Prince Dolgorouki trace their descent from the Archangel Michael."

"One Touch of Nature." Street Preacher: "I now ask, brethren, what can I do to move you—what shall I do to move you in this world of wickedness?" "Arry: 'Send round the 'at, guv'nor—that'll move 'em.'—Fun.

George Merrill, who has just returned from Wood river, Idaho, tells the Eureka Sentinel that the Wood river country is bound to boom.

The wind blew hard enough in Eureka Wednesday to demolish the three story walls of the International hotel, which the fire had left unsupported.

Eureka's new theatre is soon to be opened with one of the grandest balls ever given in Nevada.

JOTTINGS.

Look out for an assessment on Mexican.

The County Commissioners meet next Monday.

Shoot the man who cracks the new local joke about "going for dishes."

The trees looked beautiful this morning, every twig and branch loaded down with snow.

No train from Virginia last night, owing to the interruption of traffic over the Sierra.

This is the kind of weather that makes people appreciate the comforts of a home and the White House.

Washoe County has worried along at an expense of $56,976.31 for the ten months ending Dec. 1.

It is reported that Looky and Smith intend to move their planing mill from Verdi to Reno. It will be enlarged and improved in many respects.

There might have been some sleighing out of all this, had the weather kept a trifle colder. This sort of thing is distasteful to the boys—enough snow to spoil the skating and not enough to make coasting.

The trains reached Reno from the west about 1 o'clock. No. 1 was delayed until 6 or 7 o'clock at Colfax by a land slide. She was stuck just below Blue Canyon in the snow for a while. Nos. 1 and 3 came in together.

The Dull Times on the Comstock.

The Stock Reporter publishes these melancholy reflections on the decay of Virginia City: "An observing gentleman, recently from Virginia, gives a melancholy picture of that once lively camp. He tells of one keno game only—that keno game at Jim Ordorff's, the game that used to have one, two and three hundred people playing at it. Now it has three or four and sometimes ten melancholy gamblers handling the buttons. Ten players is now considered a big game. There are no longer fifteen or twenty faro games; there are only four! Shades of excitement, only four! 'And,' remarked the Virginian, 'the sports are lighting out like like sixty for New Mexico and Arizona.' After half-past nine or ten o'clock O street is as quiet as the street of a village."

Snaring Whitefish.

Before the snow came and the river got turbid the water was clear as crystal, and a number of fishermen improved the opportunity to snare whitefish in the pond above the dam. They used rods with a wire loop on the tip. The fish could be seen moving along the bottom, the wire loop would be lowered and cautiously slipped over its body, a quick jerk, and presto, the fish would be gasping on the land—perhaps. It is a little uncertain at times. Mr. Richardson, an expert, snared forty in one day recently. The whitefish is delicious, and makes a more delicate table dish than trout.

TAMING A CONVICT.

How Bob Howland Brought a Refractory Prisoner to Terms With a Red Hot Iron.

The Eureka Sentinel tells an interesting story relative to Bob Howland's incumbency of the State Prison in early days. Bob had then the same reputation for levity that he now enjoys, and when he became Warden the prisoners thought they would have an easy time of it, but were disappointed, as Bob looked well after the discipline of the prison, and not a prisoner escaped during his term of office. George Kirk, a notorious character, was sentenced in 1865 to imprisonment for highway robbery. The first morning of his stay in the penitentiary he refused to come out of his cell and "fall in line" with the other prisoners. This is how Howland subdued Kirk: "The Warden quietly ordered his cell door closed, and the other prisoners were marched 'left hand on next man's shoulder' to breakfast. Kirk in the meanwhile was raving and loudly cursing and defying the Warden of any other—to even try to make him come out until he felt disposed to. The Warden quietly went to the blacksmith shop, procured a bar of steel about twelve feet long, and had it heated for about four feet on one end to a red heat, and as quietly came back with it to cell No. 5. He again ordered Kirk to come out and "fall in," and was met with the former refusal and violent abuse. The Warden closed the grated door of the cell and shoved the bar of steel, hot end foremost, (which had now cooled to a dull color), through the bars. Kirk sprang for and grasped it with both hands with a close grip to wrench it from the Warden. With a howl of pain, as it seared the flesh, he dropped it and retreated cursing with ferocious rage. The Warden, without speaking, swayed the hot bar back and forth in the narrow cell, at times wedging Kirk into a corner, searing his limbs with every touch. Kirk howled with mingled rage and torture, now bounding over it and again under it, striking his head against the top of the cell and falling back upon the bar, yelling and screeching like pandemonium turned loose. At last he realized the helplessness of his position and begged for mercy. The bar was immediately withdrawn, the cell opened and Kirk came forth as gentle as a lamb to have his wounds dressed, and during the term of his incarceration was the most obedient convict in the prison.

All recollect his tragic end in Virginia City some years after, when refusing to obey the order of mystic "601," and leave the city at once; the following day the body of George Kirk was found hanging, cold in death, to the frame of the old hoisting works of the Gould & Curry mine."

The Wood River Country.

Wood River, Idaho, is attracting considerable attention and bids fair to have a big boom in the spring. L. P. Walker, late of Reno, has located there, and is engaged in merchandise business. He writes favorably of that section. From a gentleman just from Salt Lake City, and the neighborhood of the above now mining district, the Eureka Sentinel is informed that the Wood River country is growing in importance and eliciting more interest now than ever. About two thousand locations have been made there, and probably three-fourths of these are valuable. The ore is galena and is worked down from the croppings. The district is decidedly the poor miner's country, and is peculiar in this, that so far, the prospectors have been able to sell their ore as they have taken it out in quantities from one ton up. Many small lots have been shipped to Salt Lake and sold there to the smelters, paying handsomely. The last lot brought in was from a claim discovered by Mr. W. Garrard, of Reno, of which the first grade assayed about 625 ounces in silver, and the second grade about 340. A grand rush to Wood River is looked for in the spring, as the miner can there see an immediate return for his labor, and as the country is said to be inviting in other respects, also timber, wood, water and pasturage being abundant.

Dalton Held to Answer.

The examination of Peter Dalton closed last evening. Mrs. Dalton was not allowed to give evidence on behalf of her husband. The defendant stated that Nadon had gone to his house late in the evening for an improper motive. This morning Justice Young gave his decision holding Dalton to answer to the charge of assault on A. Nadon with a deadly weapon, with the intent to do bodily harm. Dalton has given bonds for $500 to appear before the Grand Jury. T. K. Hyman and Henry Rhue are his sureties.

Bodie's Streets.

Says the Bodie Free Press: The upper end of Main street presents a deplorable sight. From Lowe street to West & Bryant's warehouse travel is almost suspended on account of water. Men doing business in that part of town have had to close up, and unless something is soon done to remedy this evil, private families will have to find some other quarters to live in.

ATHLETICS AND DANCING.

The Reno Athletic Club's Entertainment Last Evening—Turning, Fencing, Club-Swinging, Boxing, Sword Exercise, Hopping, Etc.

Though the weather was so bad and the walking so wet last evening, the Reno Athletic Club had a fair attendance at their entertainment. The gymnastic exercises showed that the members have steadily improved since the first exhibition. The boxing was decidedly animated. Mr. Fassett is handy with his fists. The fencing was well done. The broadsword exercise was the principal feature of the evening. Messrs. Dillman and Levy hacked away at each other like gladiators, making the sparks fly from their weapons in a continuous shower. They looked villainous in their wire masks, and as bloodthirsty as a meat axe. Their spirited contest was cut short, before the best cuts and guards had been given, by the breaking of Mr. Dillman's sword. The Indian Club exercise was easily and gracefully performed by Mr. Fassett, keeping time to music. Many of the movements were difficult, the tossing motions especially. He missed a few of the latter last evening, but in practice has gone through them all without a break. Messrs. Spencer and Alexander, of the Virginia Turn-Verein, kindly gave the Club their assistance. Mr. Alexander dressed as a clown and acted well his part. He is a good gymnast. Mr. Spencer went through a number of difficult feats on the bars, rings, etc. He is an accomplished athlete and his figure, displayed to the best advantage in tights, won the admiration of the ladies. The lady athlete from Virginia failed to make her appearance, owing to the lamentable and irreparable accident to her tights at the last moment, while in the act of stooping to tie her shoe strings. The hop which followed the gymnastic exhibition was one of the most pleasant ever enjoyed in the hall. The amateur band acquitted itself admirably, and Mr. Dillman did well as a caller, though almost inexperienced. The "racquet" was seen once or twice in the evening.

The Movement in Alta.

The Alta mine is now the central point of interest on the Comstock. A month ago Alta stock was selling at $3 a share. Yesterday it sold as high as $15. There are 108,000 shares in the mine. Outsiders don't know whether this boom in the stock means a deal or a development, but they are "getting in" just the same. It has been two years since the Comstock had its last big boom, when Union sold as high as $200 a share. Alta then soared to $36. The Alta is at the extreme south end of the lode, and thus the rise in its shares has not affected the north end stocks. Alta had some promising indications two years ago, but nothing came of them, and the good reports that have come from it at different times since have not been followed by dividends. Eighteen assessments, amounting to $1,371,000, have been levied; the last on August 26, at the rate of 50 cents per share. Alta's lowest price in three years was reached last July when it touched $1 a share. The mine was located in the early days of the Comstock. The stock has been wonderfully active lately. Last month 118,000 shares changed hands month, more than the whole number in the mine. To-day Alta sold at 17 1/2.

Personal.

Gov. Woods arrived last evening from California.

Arthur Nichols got in from the east to-day—too late for the Athletic dance.

Wm. Garrard has returned from Wood River, Idaho, where he has some mining interests.

Robert H. Lindsay and wife arrived from Virginia last evening, and have taken rooms at the Depot hotel.

The Famous Opera Singers.

Annie Louise Carey and Clara Louise Kellogg are beyond question the most famous opera singers of modern times. In fact they have been universally acknowledged to be the leaders of their profession, as well as ladies of large experience and particularly good taste. They have probably traveled more extensively than any ladies on the stage, and as a consequence, have had excellent opportunities of judging of the merits of different countries and their productions. It is certainly a very great credit to California and the balmy semi-tropical climate of the Pacific, to have had them pronounce Slaven's Yosemite Colosseum by far the best they have ever used in any country. For sale by Osburn & Shoemaker.

TALK IS CHEAP,

And So Are FINE CLOTHING, BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, GENTLEMEN'S AND BOYS FINE FURNISHING GOODS.

If you go to the right place to get them, This is a mighty important point, for some people who assert that they sell cheap do nothing of the kind. We do not boast when we say that we defy competition in prices in anything in our line. Besides this we have only one price. We have no preferred customers. Everybody is treated alike at our establishment. Our stock is the largest and most complete ever offered in any part of this State. Everything we have is new. No old, musty and out-of-date goods can be found on our shelves. We receive daily by rail and express the latest and best goods, which are obtained at first hand and sold at prices below those now prevailing in New York and Chicago. Let the people come and judge of our prices and examine our stock before going into those humbugging, Cheap John shops, in which they drum into the ear of the customer that they sell at cost and even below cost. Anybody with common sense must know that they lie. No storekeeper sells goods for the fun of the thing. We make a profit on everything we sell, as every honest merchant does, and don't print foolish falsehoods in the vain hope of deceiving the public. One must make a profit to live. We particularly call attention to our full stock of fancy underwear, such as is kept nowhere else in Reno. This class of goods form one of our specialties. Orders from the country promptly attended to. Look out for the White Building with the Gold Sign.
